
The part is no longer stored in a mould but in a file; the machine adds the material where the file says, layer after layer.